Working closely with both Hong Kong Seafood Coalition (HKSSC) and World Wide Fund (WWF).

The aim of traceability within our seafood practices is that all our seafood is certified MSC or from the result of sustainable fishing. We only use suppliers who catch when in season, delivered daily and directly, so that we can guarantee the best quality of ingredients within the correct seasons.

We source local vegetables, honey and fruit from Farmhouse Productions in Tsat Sing Kong, Common Farms in Aberdeen, and Yio Farm in Lantau Island.

Micro herbs, flowers and cresses come from Urban Grow in San Po Kong. The farms also use the process of Hydroponic Farming which reduces the use of pesticides and chemicals to promote a cleaner environment.

For majority of the meat and poultry, we sourced from farms such as Rhug Estate in Denbighshire, Wales, John Stones in Ireland, New Zealand, and U.S. These farms are known for only using sustainable farming practices. However, where we can source from locally such as Ping Yuen, a local organic chicken from Kelang Modern Agriculture in Yuen Long, Hong Kong, we do as much as possible. We work with suppliers who practice on more organic farming during our procurement stages in order to contribute and maintain the health of the soil and the ecosystems by replacing conventional farming with sustainable farming techniques.

At Mandarin Oriental, we always aim to give back to the community, we give small growers and farmers the opportunity to showcase their products in our menu and restaurants.

All within our goal to be a more sustainable restaurant, whilst providing guests with the finest dining experience, and legendary service from the heart.
